June 19, 2016, Potsdam, Germany

Theme	Start	End	Section Title	Presenters/Leaders	Description
Plenary	9:00	9:15	Introduction	P. Overduin, N. Couture	Introduction of ACD and of speakers, goal of the side meeting: formulate a report defining the next phase of ACD: a five year plan based on breakout group recommendations
	9:15	9:25	IASC Welcome	Volker Rachold	Welcome statement from the IASC executive secretary.
	9:25	9:55	Keynote	Donald Forbes	Recap of ACD, future research needs, possible synergies with current initiatives.
	9:55	10:00	Instructions to Breakout Groups (BGs)	B. Radosavljevic, A. Konopczak, L. Farquharson	BG tasks are to recommend actions for ACD: What does an organization of international coastal researchers offer that cannot be accomplished individually? Goals should be achievable only in an international network within a 3-5 year time span. Define measures of success. Discuss necessary resources. Appoint rapporteur
	10:00	10:30	Breakout Goals	Speed dating	Leaders of BGs introduce and describe their BG topic in 5 minutes each.
	10:30	11:00			Coffee Break
Breakout Groups: Open Discussion Session	BG1		Coastal monitoring	A. Sinitsyn, A. Konopczak	Best practices for coastal change detection (observation methods, mapping techniques, remote sensing etc.) and site investigations.
	BG2		Database 2.0	N. Couture, B. Radosavljevic	Data needs, synergies with other projects, remote sensing products, validation.
	BG3		Modelling	E. Guegan, M. Strzelecki	Developments in arctic coastal modelling since ACD Workshop 2008 (review literature of last 8 years). What modelling goals would be useful for addressing unknowns in our current process understanding of geomorphodynamics?
	BG4		Key Sites	P. Overduin, L. Farquharson	What is the optimal design for an observing network? What sites are active? Which are represented at the meeting? Do they represent the diversity of the Arctic coast? How can these sites be relevant to and integrated in communities?
	12:30	13:20			Lunch
	13:20	13:30			Group photo
Plenary	13:30	14:15	ACD Website	B. Radosavljevic, A. Konopczak	The new ACD website: features, new content needs and an invitation for collaboration.
